

The Climate Emergency

Tom Gaston

Questions to consider, discuss or journal.

The author cited data in his introduction. Did any of these facts stand out or surprise you? How do you educate yourself on the Climate Emergency?

In your faith community is there a space for discussion and a plan of action regarding the climate emergency? What do you do on a personal level?

Have you experienced the Greenhouse Effect first hand? Are their people in your circles that deny climate change? Have you yourself denied it? How can you start a conversation with others or reassess your own standing on this issue?

Have you witnessed or participated in the rejoicing in the rebranding of human suffering as a “sign of the times”? How can we as a community better separate our longing for the kingdom from an eagerness to witness prophecy fulfilled in the face of human suffering?

The Lord is not slow to fulfill his promise as some count slowness, but is patient toward you, not wishing that any should perish, but that all should reach repentance. 2 Peter 3:9

What can we do in this time that we have been given when our Lord remains away? How have you been compelled to action? The author gives us a list of practical things we can do to make a difference. Which speaks to you? Do you have any thing to add to the list? What can we do as a larger community? Set an intention and make a plan to execute and have a conversation someone with your community.
